Making a world of difference in cancer care

ASCO Health Disparities Advisory Group

The Health Disparities Advisory Group was initially formed in 2003 as a task force. The Advisory Group provides recommendations to the ASCO Board on strategies to effectively address healthcare disparities across the cancer care continuum from prevention to end of life care. The Advisory Group reviews and assesses the full range of the Society's activities in health disparities, including cancer education, training, publications and communications, and works with appropriate bodies within the Society to increase focus on health disparities issues in relevant programs. The Advisory Group is led by a chair and is composed of experts representing both academic and community practice in a broad range of disease areas.
